

I certainly would support the opportunity to choose which channels I can get versus being stuck with the package deals the cable and satellite TV companies stick you with. The question is whether or not pricing would be fair.